Ignite Credit Union and Michigan Assistive Technology Loan Fund Launch Alight

New statewide loan program expands access to assistive technology and accessibility improvements for Michigan residents with disabilities.

Ignite Credit Union, in partnership with the Michigan Assistive Technology Loan Fund (MATLF), a program of Michigan United Cerebral Palsy (MI-UCP), is proud to announce the launch of Alight, a new low-interest loan program designed to help Michigan residents with disabilities and their family members finance assistive technology, adaptive equipment, and accessibility-related home improvements.

Available statewide through Ignite Credit Union and its divisions, Allegan Credit Union, Rivertown Credit Union, and BlueOx Credit Union, Alight is designed to make essential tools and accessibility improvements more financially attainable for individuals and families across Michigan.

Through affordable financing, Alight can help qualifying applicants purchase or finance:

- Assistive technology equipment
- Vehicles equipped with adaptive accessibility features
- Adaptive devices
- Accessibility-related home improvements that support independent living

“Access to the right technology, equipment, or home modifications can make an incredible difference in someone’s ability to live independently and participate fully in their community,” said Kris Lewis, CEO of Ignite Credit Union. “Through Alight, we’re proud to partner with MATLF and MI-UCP to help remove financial barriers and connect Michigan residents with solutions that can make a meaningful difference in their everyday lives.”

The Alight loan program builds on a shared commitment between Ignite Credit Union and MI-UCP to strengthen Michigan communities by expanding access to financial resources and supportive services. By combining Ignite Credit Union’s financial expertise and statewide presence with MI-UCP’s understanding of disability-related needs, the partnership creates another path for individuals and families to access resources that support greater independence and quality of life.

“By working with Ignite Credit Union, we are expanding the reach of the Michigan Assistive Technology Loan Fund across the state,” said Sandra Ruiz, Interim Director of MATLF. “This partnership ensures more Michigan residents with disabilities and their families have access to affordable financing that supports independence and long-term stability.”

Alight reflects both organizations’ commitment to creating more inclusive communities and helping Michigan residents access the resources they need to thrive at home, at work, and in their communities.
